Paris Is Taken, Austrians Close to Rome, Submarine Winning

AND THEN THE AWAKENING

'Germany Has No Chance," Say: Captured Officer, Told We're Million Strong

If must be great to soldier in the German army, If there isn't any wheat for bread, they make it out of potatoes; and if there isn't any tobacco, they make it out of affalfa or four leaf clover or something. Nothing to worry about, at all or something. Nothing to worry about, at all.

If there isn't any good news, they make that for you, too -Austrain victories, British and French defeats, capture of Paris, sinking of the American Army by U-boats-anything for your peace of mind.

Of course, if the French, who are beaten, and the Americans, who can't got to France, put over a barrage with gams captured by the Germans last spring and make an attack when they haven't any men to attack with, it is disconcerting. But the delusion keeps you contented while It basts.

It was a rande surprise the thousands of Germans got who fell into American bands in the first Frame-American of-fensive. That they should be attacked, with the war supposedly almost won by Germany, was unbelievable. Chat the Americans should do it—well, that was impossible.

News Made Like Coffee

News Made Like Coffee

News Made Like Coffee

The prisoner's blissful and almost imminious ignorance of the war situation in it is was striking and frequently indicators. The same governments and the same kultur which roasts accurs and calls the product coffee manufactures news with equal facility, befeats become victoriest checks are advances. Final victory is just head.

It may she shil, though, that, despite all the colored accounts of operations and misinformation that has been doled out to the German soldier, he is beginning to be dubious. His morale isn't what it was earlier in the summer. According to his schedule, the war ought to have ended by this time in a German victory—and it hasn't. But he still clings to a lot of strange ideas, A group of prisoners, representative off the big bunch taken by the Americans below Soissons, filed before an American examining officer.

One of them a private blandly explained that the German alvance guard already was in Paris and the whole German Army hadn't followed because it was thought that France would ask for peace terms without that being needs sary.

"That is why we weren't expecting an attack," he explained.

"Austrians So Successful"

"Austrians So Successful"

Another declared that a slight reverse on this front didn't make much difference because "the Austrians have been so successful." He believed the Italian Army was defeated and that the Austrians were marching toward Rome. There was a general belief that Paris had been exyneanted because of German artillery fire. Many were convinced that the new long range gams, fring 700 shots a day into the French capital, as they believed, had made it untenable. "How many Americans do you think are in France?" a German non-com was asked.

are in France?' a German non-com was asked.
"An army corps," was the reply. It know there are that many because my division has net them every place it has been for the last three months."
The victory news spread through the German army ist't always the same and it isn't always consistent. Different units seem to have their own optimistic version of how things are going, and the heliefs do not stop usually with the enlisted men.

Blind Faith in Submarine

Blind Faith in Submarine
The average German officer, of course, is not laboring under the hallucination that Paris has been taken or that Italy is defeated, but many of those taken by the Americans do believe that long range guns have made Paris unlimbilitable. Nearly all are convinced that the United States has only a few divisions in France and canor pat an army here because of the submarines.

Among the German officers examined were two who realized the situation and whose statements were enlightening. Both had lived in the United States, One was a captain who had lived in Chicago. He had been a staff officer until a few weeks are, when he took command of a company.

"At our headquarters we recovered the report that there were a million Americans in France and other confidential information about the arrival of troops from the United States," he said, "We made up our miles that the minber was about correct."

"What did your staff think of the news?" he was asked,
"It seared them stiff," he answered,

news?" he was asked.
"It scared them stiff," he answered.

"No Chance"

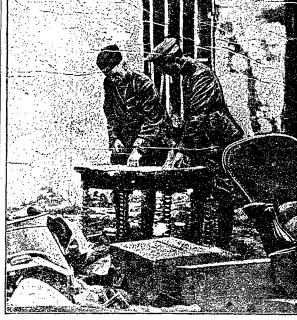

The second effect was: a first lleutenant. His name is Franz Schroeder, and he said he had worked for an American scale conjuny for 12 years in New York. In 1915, he went to Hamburg on business for his tirm and says he was forced into the army.

"I don't know how many Americans are here," he said, "We have heard many reports. Some say that many have been sunk crossing the Atlantic and that only an army corps is here, but fiere is a growing impression in Germany that the subnarines will not hold back the American Army-that there are hundreds of thousands here cliready."

"There are a million Americans in France," he was told.

"Then," he said, "Germany has no chance."

WOMEN WAR WORKERS HAVE PARK IN TOURS

Y.W.C.A. Leases Island in River Loire-Hotel Also Running

Also Running

Primarily for the benefit of women war workers, but open to all American. French and English women in the vicinity of Tours, the Y.W.C.A. has lensed a young park of its own, at the westernmost end of the He de Simon, the pretty little islet set in the middle of the Loire. Already the new recreation ground has been christened by an informal picnic, has been further tested by another basket hunch party, and has been pronounced 'builty.' 'tres gentil' and 'a little bit of quite all right.' according to the mationality of the participants.

It is planned to level off a portion of the land on the island and place tennis courts thereon as well wired as the front line tranches so that cotton-and-rubber spheroids won't be wafted down the Loire to the seashore and beyond, and thus become likely prey to the U-boats, for Germany is woefuly short of cotton and rubber.

It's too bad, some of the more athletically inclined women say, that the island sind big enough for a golf course; but, with a real good golf course right there in Tours, there doesn't seen any need of it.

Tours, too, now has a hotel run on the American club plan—with an entrance fee, etc.—for the benefit of American and British women who are working with the A.E.F. Already there are about 140 permanent guests.

What the name of the new ladies' park is going to be is still a moot question, with the guessing contest open to one and all. At the hour of going to press the favorite was "No man's Land."

ALL WANTED JOBS

And It Wasn't the Hospi tal's Fault That They Went Without

Three Red Cross chaplains, three afterest, came marching on an undefended American Red Cross hospital somewhere in the Z. of A. Going into the administrative office, they lined up, and their spotesman said:

"We have been assigned as chaplains to this hospital. When do you want us to begin work?"

The orderly in charge scratched his head.

"Why," he ventured, "all the officers are out just now. You see, we only opened up the other day, and there's still a lot to be done, but——"

"Well, we can go in and see the patients, can't we?" persisted the sailing spokesman. "We've been regularly assigned, and all that."

"Wity. I suppose so," the orderly came back, still scratching lis head, "but—"
"Int what?" queried the spokesman politely.

"Well," the orderly answered, rather sheepishly, "you see, we's only got one battent in here now, and if three chapare hundreds of thousands here already."

"There are a million Americans in France," he was told.

"Then," he said, "Germany has no chance."

A system of "hand-to-hand" receipts make a not consider the Army has not chance."

A raw-honed doughboy who had served two years in the Infantry had guddenly been shifted over into the Artillery.

Minus any extensive mathematical training, he had spend about four weeks attempting to grapple with mils, deflections, aiming points and the like when one day he appealed to his captain for a transfer back to the Infantry, where he could trade the 6-inch for a rifle.

"What for?" the captain asked.

"I wanta get back, sir," he answered.
"To a gitme where I can carry my deflection in my hand."

When the wiping out of the Soissons-Rheims salient becomes a mere incldent in the growing list of German victories that might have been, there will probably be no item better remembered by men who were wounded while on that little job than the item of lemonade.

The S.A. had been looking forward to hot weather, drive or no drive, and they were getting ready to substitute real lemonade, with rinds and everything, for the old reliable chocolate or the doubtful plant. The yeater supply was none too good, and when a man is lift, he wants something to drink as soon as he can get to it.

Everybody to the Barrels

Everybody to the Barrels
So when the doughboys and the Artillery and the Signal Corps began sending representatives back to visit the dressing stations, the Salvation Army came to the fore with those stallan lemons, beaucoup sugar and barrels of clean, cold water which they brought up on a Ford delivery truck. Every Yank that got within range of that lemon threw away, his cigarette and made a dive for his tin cup.

cup.

The doctors say that a good many who couldn't walk, and who couldn't make a dire for their share, are going to live and go back to the States because they got a drink that killed their fever when they needed it most. Lemonade is a life-saver to wound-fevered men, and this particular lot turned some good tricks for the surgeons.

particular lot turned some good tricks for the surgeons.

Another thing that was imported for use in the emergency was mostule netting. When the need for protection gainst flies was apparent at the execution hospitals and dressing stations, the Salvation lassies sent to Paris and got all they could.

Then too, the doughnut batteries more than scored on this latest strategic retreat of Fritz. Two little Salvation lassies fed 28-lost, hungry doughboys in a bunch, less than six hours after first starting their refreshment station. Battle smoke could not blot out the cheerful smell of frying nor shell-fire drive away the allure of the nuctuous sinker.

"They came up like camions, unlimbered like 75s and were in action in nothing fatt," said one gritining Artilleryman. Which is what a Franco-Yanko might call "some liaison."

CHOW

AFTER FOUR YEARS

(To Germany)

Four eternal years ago this balmy August morning,
Something must have busted loose within your well-known bean;
Four eternal years ago we read where you were horning
Into France and Belgium with the yan of your machine.

Into France and negroon wan the yar of your mechane.

Of your mechane.

First we subbed our startled eves and sails We must be steeping.

This could never inspire in the sort of world we know." world we know."
Yet four tends ago today your endless lines came sweeping
In a march as countless as the drift of winter snow.

There the world lay at your feet—and who was there to guard it.
Up from mountain height above along to reedy tarn?
Who was there to meet your drive—to rush in and refard it?
(I wonder if you've ever known a river called the Marne?)

Four eternal years ago your shrapnel fell in fountains.
Where your big guns blasted out the road for your advance:
Yes, their thunder crushed the walls and shook the rugged montains—But you found they couldn't shake the nighty heart of France!

es, you started something, Fritz, if you want the credit, want the credit, Yes, you opened quite a pot, taken by and large;
Only in the days ahead, don't forget we said it.
When the guns are after you with their last barrage.

Do you still think "Might is right" through your waning power?
What has Kuhur left to you along the roads you've known?
What—except a swirl of ghosts, growing

every hour,
Adding to the coterie around you
Kaiser's throne?

Once you drank unto "The Day"—does it look as splendid
As it did four years ago upon your first advance?
On the level, Helnie, now, don't you wish it ended?
Don't you wish you'd never seen the highway into France?

Four years ago today the Germans were on their way towards Paris. They are still on the way—but not towards Paris

"We will bring peace with our shining sword,"--Wilhelm. At which point some unfeeling bonehead came in and woke him up.
